● ABOUT MYSELF

A computer engineer specializing in web development, I have extensive experience gained through various projects within innovative companies. For several years, I have designed and optimized websites, applications, and digital platforms, combining technical performance, creativity, and attention to detail. This experience has allowed me to develop a high degree of autonomy, an ability to quickly adapt to client needs, and an excellent command of modern technologies such as ReactJS, NodeJS, WordPress, and Docker. Driven by a passion for digital technology and a desire to take on new challenges, I am committed to providing tailor-made, efficient, and sustainable web solutions that meet the expectations of businesses and end users.
